NUMB. 3226

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1744

Yesterday arriv'd the Mail due from Holland.

Moscow, August 22.

ARON Mardefeldt, Envoy Extraordinary from the King of Prussia, receiv'd, the Day before Yesterday, a Courier from Berlin, with the important News of his Master's Resolution, to grant a Body of Auxiliaries to the Emperor; which he immediately notified to the Great Chancellor, Count Bestucheff; presenting him, at the same time, with the Exposition of the Motives which induc'd his Prussian Majesty to take that Step. Upon which his Excellency dispatch'd a Courier to acquaint the Empress with what had happened, at Kiow. It is impossible to express how great a Hurry this News has occasion'd among all the Foreign Ministers: Lord Tyrwley, and the Queen of Hungary's Resident, have obtained Leave to send, and, in consequence thereof, immediately dispatched Expresses to Kiow, with their Memorials upon that Subject. The Scheme of Foreign Negotiations at this Court is thus represented. The Baron de Neuhaus, his Imperial Majesty's Plenipotentiary, solicits the renewing the ancient Alliance between the two Empires; offering, on the Part of his Imperial Majesty, the Guaranty of the Russian Succession. Baron Mardefeldt, the Prussian Minister, supports him in this Demand; and endeavours to persuade the Ministry, that his Majesty does not make War upon the Queen of Hungary by invading Bohemia; but has taken that Step, purely to induce her to make Peace, and that he might thereby preserve the Constitution of the Empire; whence he infers, that the Czarina can have no Reason in the World to take Umbrage at his Master's Conduct. The British Ambassador, Lord Tyrwley, labours to prove the contrary of this; in order to engage her Imperial Majesty to cause the Troop, already assembled on the Frontiers of Courland, to march immediately into Germany. The Count de Rosenberg, who is hourly expected here, is charg'd with a Commission from the Queen of Hungary, to renew the Alliance between the Imperial Family of Russia and the House of Austria. It is thought these Negotiations will be brought to some Issue, as soon as her Imperial Majesty returns from Kiow.

Warsaw, September 2. His Majesty assist'd on the 29th of last Month at an assembly of the Senate, when their Deliberations lasted from Nine in the Morning till Noon. In this Status Consultum, Six Articles were propos'd, which are to be the Subject of the Consultations in the ensuing Dyet. The Third of these Propositions related to the raising the Forces of this Kingdom, in order to give her Weight amongst the rest of the Potentates in Europe; but after mature Deliberation, it was agreed, that the fittest Measure that could be taken in these perilous Times, was to recommend to the Dyet, the putting all the Fortresses on the Frontiers into a good Poiture of Defence, and not involving the Republick, either in too great Expences, or in any such Armaments as may occasion Disputes with her Neighbours.

Venice, September 5. The Senate has sent Orders to its Bailiff at Constantinople, to terminate immediately, and on the best Terms possible, the Disputes that have arisen between the Republick and the Bashas of Dalmatia; it is hoped we shall soon have a good Account of this Matter; because that Bashas, under Pretence of some Insult offer'd to the Subjects of the Grand Signior, has assembled a great Body of Forces on the Frontiers of our Dominions, which we would very willingly see dispers'd.

Rome, August 29. Count de Gages has put it out of the Power of the Austrians to make any more Attempts upon his Camp, by throwing up new Works. The Convoy lately surpriz'd by the Austrians, was, in a great Measure, retaken by the Spaniards. All the Prisoners on both Sides have been releas'd. It appears by the Motions made by the Austrian Army, that the Embarkation is at last to take Place; tho' others are of Opinion, that Prince Lobkowitz will shortly retire into Lombardy, in consequence of some new Treaty between her Majesty of Hungary, and the King of Poland. The King of the Two Sicilies has issued strict Orders for raising Regiments throughout all his Dominions.

Leghorn, August 29. We know not what to think of the Behaviour of our Neighbours, the Genoese; who, of late, are quite altered from what they were, both in their Circumstances and Behaviour. They have, at present, 14,000 Regular Troops in their Pay, and they have lately issued out abundance of new Commissions. We have good Intelligence here, that the Army of the two Crowns retired out of their Dominions in Concert with them. We have also Assurances, that by a new Treaty, Oniglia is to be given them; and, in that Case, we can easily foresee what are the Terms on which it is to be purchas'd; for these Troops, without doubt, which they are drawing together with so much Industry, would be employed in preventing the Return of Prince Lobkowitz with his Army into Lombardy, and putting, thereby, the Austrian Forces between two Fires; for he would then have the Genoese in his Front, and the Count de Gages in his Rear.

Genoa, August 29. On Tuesday last, about Noon, the English Fleet sail'd by this Place for Vado; whereas it was retarded by contrary Winds, it could not arrive before the next Day. All the Austrian Troops that are intended for the Succour of the King of Sardinia, are in full March; the Forces of the Grand Duke are likewise in Motion; and there is Reason to believe, that a Part of them also will be employed in Piedmont; the rather, since it is certain, that without a considerable Supply, the King of Sardinia cannot maintain himself in Possession of any Part of his Country, except his Capital; tho', it is certain, that he has put all the Men who are able to bear Arms, in his Dominions, into Motion.

Vienna, September 5. We have begun again to work with the utmost Diligence on the Fortifications of this City. Prince Charles of Lorraine is expected this Evening. There arrived, some Days ago, in the Neighbourhood of this City, a Body of 900 Hungarians, who quitted the Army of General Felicitz, on account of some ill Usage they receiv'd from their Officers; the Queen had the Goodness to confer with them herself, to order 100 Ducats to be distributed amongst them, and to cause Letters to be written, in very serious Terms, to their Officers; upon which, they very cheerfully took a Resolution of marching back again. A Prussian Courier, who arriv'd some Days ago, was ordered to retire, without so much as opening, or receiving his Dispatches.

Berlin, September 12. The Count de Gotter, Grand Marshal of the Court, and Counsellor of State and of War, set out the Day before Yesterday for Dresden, in order to execute a Commission there, of the last Importance. We have certain Advice from Prague, that all who are able to bear Arms have enroll'd themselves, and, that the Merchants, particularly, have form'd a Company of Vountiers, who took the Military Oath before General Hsrich, and have promis'd to assist in defending the City, to the last Extremity. The same Thing is done in all the Towns and Villages in Bohemia; so that the People seem to be determined to act with the greatest Firmness in Defence of their Country. We have, as yet, no News of the investing of Prague, which we expected before now; and which, perhaps, depends on the Messige with which Count Gotter is entrusted.

Mannheim September 12. The Count de Wachtendonck is returned hither from Metz, whether he went to compliment his most Christian Majesty on his Recovery. The Imperial Army is in full March from Philipsburgh and Bretten, in order to encamp at Mergentheim, where they will wait the Arrival of the Auxiliary Troops of the Empire, and, perhaps, of the Emperor himself. The French Army is also in full March for the Brisgau, and take Possession, in their Way, in the Name, and on the Behalf of the Emperor, of all the Places in Sasbia, which have hitherto belonged to the Queen of Hungary. It is believed that M. de Maillebois will march with 25,000 Men into Westphalia, in order to cover, from any Insult, the Dominions of his Prussian Majesty, and the Elector Palatine.

Strasbourg, September 13. The Count de Clermont opens Trenches before Fribourg this Day; and, it is thought, will be Master of the Place in six Weeks, having a Train of 116 Pieces of Cannon, and 40 Mortars.

Hague, September 18. The States of Holland and West Freizland assembled here Yesterday, and Tomorrow will dispose of all the vacant Employments, both Civil and Military. We have an Account from Bohemia, that a very warm Action happened there, on the 6th, in the Neighbourhood of Beraun, between 3000 Hungarians, supported by the Army of Count Bathiani, and 7000 Prussians; wherein the latter, after an obstinate Engagement, which lasted several Hours, were, at length, obliged to retire, with the Loss of 1000 Men; and to abandon their Artillery. There is a prodigious Desertion among the Prussian Troops in Bohemia and Moravia, inasmuch, that whole Companies of Foot, and Troops of Horse, go off at a time, as the last Letters from Vienna say; which, perhaps, merit Confirmation. According to the last Advices from the Army in Flanders, Count Maurice of Nassau is in a manner recover'd of his late Infirmitie; and that, it is thought, the Allies will very soon enter upon Action.

We are in hopes to see General Oglethorpe here soon, or to hear of his Arrival at Georgia. As no Man in Life is so well acquainted with the Nature and Turn of the Indians as himself, so our great Dependence must be upon him.
